Sustainability at Rosewood Little Dix Bay

Originally founded by conservationist Laurance Rockefeller in 1964, Rosewood Little Dix Bay has long acted as a steward of sustainability throughout the British Virgin Islands, doing its part to preserve the delicate Caribbean ecosystem.

Considered to be one of the first eco-resorts, the property has upheld this commitment throughout its 60-year legacy. Today, guided by Rosewood Impacts, Rosewood Hotel Group's sustainability roadmap that aims to positively impact the planet and the communities it serves, the property continues to seek out new ways to lessen its impact and champion local initiatives.

LOCAL PARTNERSHIPS

Rosewood Little Dix Bay began a partnership with Green VI in 2024, an environmental nonprofit organization working with businesses, schools, and the government for a greener, cleaner, and healthier British Virgin Islands. To continue supporting our partnership, for every paid room night a USD1 is donated to Green VI.

Rosewood Little Dix Bay also partners with the Association of Reef Keepers (ARK), a marine conservation organization. While staying with us, spend time with Sea Turtles as you gain knowledge on the protection of this endangered species within the BVI. This unique guest or group experience includes monitoring hatchlings and monthly turtle tagging to track their whereabouts and continued safety.

THE FARM

The on-property farm follows environmentally responsible practices to provide our restaurants with all-organic ingredients. Adhering to the principles of sustainability, no chemicals are used. Instead, we follow traditional methods such as applying homemade compost for soil health and Neem tree leaf infusions to deter pests. The robust garden rewards those who tend it and those who enjoy its bounty, is kind to nature's creatures, and is good for the planet as a whole.

During your stay, book a horticultural tour to explore our lovingly nurtured farm. Learn how we grow organic mangos, cauliflower, lemongrass, okra, and so much more.
