

THE MAJESTIC FORCE OF NATURE

RIVIERA NAYARIT

ROSEWOOD

Rosewood Mandarinina rests between jungle and sea, where wild nature and an ancient worldview shape every experience — an emblem of Mexico’s Riviera Nayarit, defined by its megadiverse natural setting.

This coastal escape draws inspiration from its verdant home. Along the shoreline of Canalan Beach, palm-studded paths weave toward accommodations that open onto mountains, oceanfront and forest canopy.

The ancestral philosophies of the Wixárika and Cora peoples — who see all life as sacred and interconnected — inspire the design, rituals and communal spirit of the retreat. From seasonal celebrations to shared fireside gatherings, culture here is not curated but lived, and a long-lost dialogue between land and people is restored.

Wellbeing is guided by the practices of the region’s Indigenous communities. Surrounding a locally revered Parota tree, guests take part in clay body treatments, breathwork and dream journaling — each drawn from generational tradition and attuned to personal transformation.

Rosewood Mandarinina is a Pacific coast dreamscape, shaped by regional identity and ecological richness.
