Japan's history of well-known and constant pursuit of perfection can be traced back throughout history. Much like the craft spirits and cocktails that came after, the following list of samurai swords came about through a constant strive for excellence and unwavering dedication to quality. We pay homage to the finest swords and bladesmiths of Japan's past with this fine selection of hand crafted and unique whisky based cocktails.

Intertwined with the history of the Japanese swordsmith is that of the Bushido, the precursor to the famous Samurai of Japan. Bushido followed strict principles which emphasized honour, courage, skill and loyalty. Along with our swords the bushido would live by 8 virtues; rectitude, courage, benevolence, respect, sincerity, honour, loyalty and character. This code would help to sustain the way of the warrior and continues to resonate throughout the Japan of today.

swords

Dōjigiri, Mizazuki, Onimaru, Ōdenta, Juzumaru

year created

Muromachi period circa 14th century

history

Also known as the five greatest swords under heaven. This is a collection of Japan's most famous samurai swords, created through times of the Bushido code and the way of the samurai. These samurai would never be far from their katana, always close by, living in tandem, truly being sword and spirit.

"When one is writing a letter, he should think that the recipient will make it into a hanging scroll."

swords

Dōjigiri Yasutuna

year created

circa 10th century

history

The oldest surviving katana style sword in all of Japan and often referred to as 'yokozuna' or 'champion' of swords. The Yasutuna style is supremely central to the history of Japanese swords that many forged after take direct influence from here including the patterned 'hamon' styling which strengthens the blades."

"There is surely nothing other than the single purpose of the present moment. Live being true to the single purpose of the moment."

swords

Mizazuki Munechika

year created

circa 11th century

history

The 'Crescent-moon' sword was a favourite of the Kengo Shogun and brought to life by Sanjo Munechika, considered one finest swordsmiths during the Heian period. Along the blades edge delicate half-moons appear to create an exquisite pattern and are said to ward off illness and suffering.

"This is the substance of the Way of the Samurai: if by setting one's heart right every morning and evening, one is able to live as though his body were already dead, he gains freedom in the Way."

Onimaru Kunitsuna

year created

circa 13th century

history

The sword was made by the swordsmith Awataguchi Kunitsuna. Legend says that the Imperial Samurai Hojo Tokimasa was having dreams nightly in which he would be haunted by a demon. Tokimasa cleaned the sword and stood it upright, after which the sword, moving by itself, fell and sliced the neck of a demon that had been engraved on a decorated pot. From this point on, Tokimasa no longer had the dreams, and thus called the sword Onimaru.

"Although this may be a most difficult thing, if one will do it, it can be done. There is nothing that one should suppose cannot be done."

swords

Ôdenta Mitsuyo

year created

circa 11th century

history

Forged by swordsmith Miike Denta Mitsuyo who eventually passed it along to the Maeda clan. Maeda Toshitsune's oldest daughter fell ill one day and nothing could be done to cure her. The Ôdenta was placed at her bedside and miraculously she recovered. The sword was seen as the elixir to her ailments and so was left within the permanent possession of the Maeda family and regarded as one of the regalia swords of the shoguns of the Ashikaga clan.

history

The most ceremonial of the Tenka Goken and so called because of the Buddhist rosary that was placed over the sword's hilt. The blade was created by Aoe Tsunetsugu and presented to the great Buddhist reformer Nichiren who symbolised it as the establishing of righteousness.

"There are few people who will make mistakes with fire after having once been burned."
